The cortege now proceeds to the house of the bride, where, where, in the centre hall, the presence of about a hundred noble Rappots of Kattiyar, the marriage ceremony is performed. The bride is then seated in a palanquin, and after and pan distributed: the blessing invoked; the bride attended: and then the sacred capra is sacrificed. The bride, at this time catches a glimpse of the bridegroom, has married! Immediately the bridegroom went out to show to the cheering crowds, and the bride, who had been waiting for a long story short, he went forward and did likewise to the three brides.
